

Ex-missile specialist adds firepower to recruitment firm

A DERBY recruitment firm has appointed a former high-velocity missile specialist as a consultant.

Daniel Taylor has joined Cherry Professional, which specialises in finance and office support staff.

His background is in business management, temporary and contract recruitment, marketing and business development. He also served with the Army where he picked up expertise in high-powered munitions. He has provided corporate security for Rolls-Royce.

Simon Gray, director of the Friar Gate firm, said: "We've been growing very swiftly since we first set up the business three years ago and now have 11 members of staff. We set up our Derby office last year and Daniel's appointment will help us to reach the growth objectives."
